Mrs Rajshree Pathy

Chairperson, CII Southern Region &
Chairman & Managing Director
Rajshree Sugars & Chemicals Limited

"We need to ensure that there should be value addition for the growers. We should reduce wastage, promote crop diversification, generate employment opportunities and increase export earnings". She said India's food processing industry was worth about $70 billion and it was growing at the rate of nine per cent a year.

The three-day International Exhibition on Food Processing, Packaging and Technology showcases the current trends in the food processing, showcase innovation through modern technology and provide a unique platform to network and explore new business opportunities in the food and related sectors.

The 230 exhibitors include companies and institutions from Canada, China, Germany, Israel, Italy, Korea, Malaysia, Netherlands, Spain and Switzerland, in addition to the Indian participants. Supported by 30 sectoral associations, there would be B2B meetings, live demonstrations and product Launches during the course of the exhibition. Korea and The Netherlands are the partner countries.

The conference on 'Future of Food Processing Industry' with the theme, 'Technology, Innovation, Product & Standards (TIPS) for Growth', discussed on Friday topics like: 'Recent advances in food processing technologies; 'Latest trends in storage, handling and packaging technologies' and 'Food safety and consumer awareness'.

Mr Navas Meeran

Chairman – Foodpro 2015 &
Immediate Past Chairman CII-SR &
Chairman, Eastern Condiments Private Limited

The Indian food industry was poised for huge growth. Based on the scope for value addition, the food processing industry has become a high profile sector, he said.

Consistent growth in demand for high value food products combined with strongly complementing supply strengths has helped in the creation of a positive outlook for the processed food segment, he further added.

However, the industry is facing constraints like non-availability of adequate infrastructure facilities, lack of adequate quality control and testing infrastructure, seasonalities of raw materials, taxation issues, high packaging cost, affordability and cultural preference for fresh food.

Mr Piruz Khambatta

Chairman, CII National Committee on
Food Processing & Chairman & Managing Director
Rasna Private Limited

The CII Mission was to make India the food factory of the world. There should be a mission mode on food processing - 'Food From India' - in the same way as 'Digital India' and 'Skill India'. In order to carry out this mission, there should be the ease of doing business on regulatory issues. The industry on its part should give great emphasis on quality with voluntary compliance, he said.

There should also be massive mobilisation of skills and talents for the success of the mission 'Food From India', he said. He called for close collaboration with the government, industry and farmers, the promotion of co-operative farming with the latest technologies, and value-added crops. Only the food industry can ensure inclusive growth in the country, he said.

Mr Piruz said to promote the brand India abroad the government should extend the Market Development Assistance (MDA) and provide fiscal and financial incentives to the food processing industry.

Mr Alphonstus Stoelinga

Ambassador to India
Embassy of Kingdom of The Netherlands

'Food from India can feed the World'

Chennai, August 28. India's potential to feed the world with 'Food From India' can be made true with the technology from The Netherlands. It is planning to set up 10 centres of excellence for food processing to find technological solutions for the agriculture sector and its various subsectors in India in collaboration with the State governments, universities and private sector companies said Mr Alphonstus Stoelinga, Ambassador to India, Embassy of Kingdom of The Netherlands, said on Friday at the 11th edition of the biennial event on Food Processing, Packaging and Technology, Foodpro' 2015, organised by the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) in Chennai.

The food industry in India depends on two important pillars of the economy, the industry and agriculture, he said. "There is a tertiary step in food processing which is food engineering. Spices and raw foods can be processed to food colours, flavours and fragrances that can be used in other industries also, he said. The Netherlands from very traditional agriculture, through so many years, developed the state-of-the art agriculture technologies with the support of the government, the private sector and the knowledge institutions, he added. Mr Stoelinga said this golden triangle of government, private sector and knowledge institutions can help India develop its food processing industry and feed the world.

Mr Kyungsoo KIM

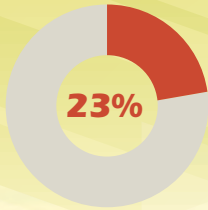

Consul General,
Consulate General of the Republic of Korea

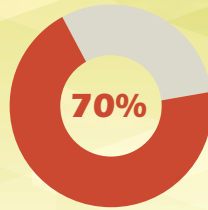

"Food processing was fundamental to the economy and to the lives of many people. Food processing had several benefits like removing the toxic materials, preservation and improving food consistency. Improvement in food processing technology could meet the needs of the future.

Mr Kim said the cultural similarities, food habits and life styles of the people of Korea and India could pave the way for greater co-operation in the food processing sector. The Korean pavilion has eight companies exhibiting the Korean food products and technologies.
